And what the New Delaware River Bridge will do for Camden—

IF you do not know New York and Brooklyn, as well as you know Philadelphia and Camden, let me tell you what the Brooklyn Bridge and the Bridges and Subways that have followed did for Brooklyn.

Almost 1,500,000 people have moved to Brooklyn since the Brooklyn Bridge was built—To-day more than twice the population of Camden crosses the Brooklyn Bridge daily. This enormous flow of homeseekers forced the building of additional bridges and subways. Tunnels were built under the East River and Manhattan's Subways were extended to Brooklyn.

Philadelphia homeseekers will flow over the New Delaware Bridge to Camden just as New York homeseekers flowed over the Brooklyn Bridge to Brooklyn. This flow of population should force the building of more bridges and the extension of Philadelphia's Subway System under the Delaware River to Camden.

Surely—I do not have to tell any thinking man or woman what the effect will be on Camden Real Estate Values!

The Time to Buy Camden Real Estate is Now!

The United States Government is going to sell Camden Real Estate at Auction "at your own price." Uncle Sam, during the war, built permanent residential communities, to attract the highest class employees and executives—1898 Brick Houses, good to look upon and built for comfort and "easy housekeeping."

New Delaware River Bridge

To New York Real Estate Investors

THE accompanying advertisement is appearing to-day in the Philadelphia and Camden Newspapers.

I am reprinting it in New York to give wide-spread publicity to this United States Government Sale of 1898 Brick Houses—the largest Auction Sale of Homes ever held.

New York is accustomed to large Auction Sales. But—even in New York—it would be most unusual to expect the market to absorb, all at once, this large number of houses.

Camden and Philadelphia are cities where the public is no accustomed to large Auction Sales such as I hold in New York.

And yet, Camden, which is a City of itself, is as close to Philadelphia, one of the largest and oldest Cities in this Country, as Brooklyn is to Manhattan. And the $30,000,000 Delaware River bridge will make Camden the "Brooklyn of Philadelphia."

Now—New Yorkers are fast workers; on the other hand the people of Philadelphia are more deliberate, and we have always regarded Philadelphia as slow to grasp an opportunity "on the fly." I do not believe this! YET—the fact remains I have not received nearly enough inquiries to absorb the large number of houses to be sold.

But even if Philadelphians do not act today they will be stirred to action after this sale when they see outsiders snapping up the Bargains they should have had. This means that there should be profits for the Operator, the Speculator and the Small Investors who take the time and trouble to attend this sale and BUY. You, wide-awake New York investors, must see in this great sale your opportunity, based on the inevitable growth of Camden and the fact that Philadelphians must live there. The growth of Camden when the new bridge is finished is inevitable as the growth of Brooklyn, after the Brooklyn Bridge was built. And Brooklyn now has more than 2,000,000 population! Think of the "Camden of the Future" and attend the sale at Camden next Saturday.
